Hatmaker also revisits her childhood memories and offers readers glimpses of her parents' and siblings' intimate relationship. Women who seek an uplifting chuckle at the countless mishaps and, yes, even the miraculous, in life's every day happenings will appreciate Hatmaker's primer of spotting the glorious amidst the mundane.

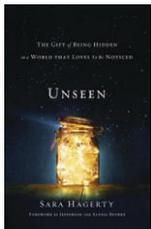

Retailers should be aware that the author has made known her support of gay marriage. In this text she makes one mention of the church being a sanctuary for all people including those in the LGBTQ community who are actively involved in same-sex relationships. —Michele Howe

Doing Busy Better by Glyniss Whitwer (Revell/Baker, p, $15.99, ISBN: 9780800727154) challenges women to examine their hearts in order to find a balance between work and rest.

Whitaker House releases Pockets of Joy by Roxane Battle (c, $13.99, ISBN: 9781629119106), showing readers how to look for moments of gratitude and know they are complete in God.

Unseen
Sara Hagerty/Zondervan
c $18.99 ISBN: 9780310339977

Hagerty opens her heart and home with touching stories about her family as they relate and grow in the Lord. Personal and biblical stories lead us through the idea that being noticed may not be the ideal way of life that social media tries to make us believe. Being seen by only God can bring joy unbound and a relationship overflowing with love.

God brings us joy notes when we are alone and aware of only Him. He strengthens us when no one else is noticing that our day has run short of energy. As Hagerty says, "This is friendship with God. He sees me when no one is looking, and I search Him in response." Life becomes richer when we spend time with God just to enjoy being with Him.

In addition to excellent visual imagery, Hagerty provides ample Scripture references for continued pursuit of each chapter's topic. —Donna Watson
